Summer Service

Starts Shortly

A new train schedule, commencing June 1st, is being arranged to accommodate the heavy summer travel. The following announcement will interest the Carmel travelers:

A new train will leave San Francisco Third street station 8:05 a. m. and return via Santa Cruz mountain line to Watsonville Junction. Connection will be made at Watsonville Junction for Monterey and Pacific Grove. Returning the new train will connect with Pacific Grove and Monterey, leaving Watsonville Junction about 4:45 p. m. and arrive at San Francisco about 9:50 p. m.

Trains 69 and 70 now running between San Francisco and Santa Cruz will be extended from Santa Cruz to Watsonville Junction, connecting with the Lark southbound to Los Angeles, and with No. 17 northbound from Los Angeles.

A new train will leave Pacific Grove about 3:05 p. m. and run via Gilroy without change to San Francisco, arriving about 8:30 p. m.

Trains 148 and 149 now running between Pacific Grove and Del Monte Junction, connecting with "The Sunset Limited" will be discontinued.

Funds For Fireworkers

Funds for the Carmel firemen continue to arrive at the Pine Cone office. The urgent necessity for increased fire protection has reached the minds of the many Carmel citizens and property owners, who have already responded to the appeal. The list of contributors follows:

Previously acknowledged	$42.00

Total $85.50

Tiny Trout Taken

John Grey, circulation manager of the San Francisco Call, motored to Carmel last Sunday and spent the day along the banks of the upper Carmel river. Several dozen trout failed to answer the roll call on Monday morning. The Call continues to lead the Bulletin by such a substantial margin that their circulators have lots of time for fishing. Pressley Mallory and Isaac Walton Jacobs, both identified with the advertising department of San Francisco's leading evening newspaper, provided the ballast for the trip.

John Machado has retired from the service of the Bus line to Monterey. Bobby Norton will occupy the driver's seat, made vacant by Johnny's retirement. The latter, very popular driver, will engage in business on his own account in Carmel in the very near future.

Pine Needles

Langley Howard was a recent visitor here. He was a guest at the Greene home.

C. Sumner Green has returned from Pasadena and will be here practically all summer.

Murray Rich, who spent most of the winter in Carmel, has returned after a brief visit to Palo Alto.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. B. Morse of San Francisco have taken a house at Pebble Beach for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Baldwin of Uplands will occupy the Vincent home on Carmel Bay this season.

Colonel and Mrs. J. Hudson Poole are preparing to leave Pasadena to occupy their home on Carmel Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Hill and family of St. Paul will open their home on the Carmel Bay next month.

Prof. and Mrs. K. G. Reindorf and daughter, who motored here from Palo Alto recently, returned home Saturday.

Patrickson Greene, who has been attending a mining school in Reno, will be home the end of this month. Next year he will attend the University of California.

E. H. Lewis is in Los Gatos with his wife, where he is executing a large decorating contract. Upon their return to Carmel, Mr. Lewis will go into business here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Middlemiss, who were married last week in Sacramento, are in Carmel for a short stay before leaving for their future home in Birmingham, Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cravens of Pasadena will not occupy their new home on Carmel Bay for several months. The Cravens home is being constructed under the personal supervision of the owners.

The popular entertainment at Carmel Church for this month will be a recital by Prof. R. H. Alden of Stanford. The date will be Friday the twenty-seventh. A fuller announcement will appear next week.

Ralph H. Walker of Oakland is occupying Sunset cottage and will be there until June. He had as his guests last week P. J. Walker, R. A. Walker, Miss Agnes Salis, Miss Kathleen Jay and Mr. Frank Davis.

A Lakewood, N. J., correspondent of the Pine Cone writes: "Hang on to the dunes, the cypress trees and the pines. There is so little left that God made that if you hang on to those of Carmel, it will make the place famous one of these days. Nothing else will. Before long the 'Real Things' are going to have their chance."

We'll soon know the fate of Ocean avenue. The corps of lawyers employed by the opponents of the improvement filed their briefs with Judge Bardin last Monday, and City Attorney Osborn will answer their charges today. The Salinas correspondent of the Pine Cone will flash the verdict the minute it is announced. Watch the Pine Cone bulletin.

M. Davis and family motored to San Francisco on Sunday morning and returned Tuesday afternoon.

Complaints continue to pile in concerning the condition of the highway near what is known as Old Carmel.

Mrs. R. W. Covington and daughter are leaving shortly for Bowling Green, Kentucky. The Pine Cone follows them.

The regular monthly illustrated lecture at Carmel Church will be given Sunday night at 7:45. The topic will be "Italy."

Miss Katharine Cooke was in San Francisco several days last week, attending to the selection of costumes for the Forest Theatre summer plays.

The Corson family are now occupying the old Hancock residence on San Carlos avenue. The property was recently purchased through court action.

The Blue Bird Tea Room on Camino Real will reopen next Monday, when old and new patrons will be welcomed in a more commodious room.

In sums varying from ten cents to five dollars, the total of $85.50 has been forwarded through the Pine Cone to the Salvation Army from its Carmel friends.

There's a void at the southeast corner of Lincoln street and Fourth avenue—a vacant lot where the library used to be. The larger library is now on the northwest corner.

Mrs. Charles Clark and her daughter, Miss Margaret, are leaving for Palo Alto about June 1, there to make their home. They have many friends here, and their departure will be much regretted.

The moving picture schedule calls for three shows each week commencing next month. Pictures will be shown on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, starting June 2. The Thursday pictures will be Goldwyns.

The Pine Cone was in error in stating that Thomas Vincent Cator contemplated an extension of his present concert tour to the Eastern States. Mr. Cator has retained his Carmel residence and will return here during August of this year.

Since the street agitation has been going on there has been a considerable falling off in Carmel property transactions. One property owner who started building has suspended operations pending a court decision.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip K. Gordon have returned from their travels in foreign lands. Mrs. Gordon spent the week end here, the guest of Mrs. Keepers. On June 1 the Gordons are coming down from San Francisco to make their home here.

Mrs. Julia White will depart in a few days for her old home in the East to attend to some matters of business. She has bought lots here and will return to make Carmel her home. Her daughter, Miss Hallie Osborn, has taken apartments in Pacific Grove, where she will remain until her mother's return.

The Boy Boosters

A Busy Bunch

The increased activity among the Boys' Clubs in Carmel marks the prosperous future for the young men and boys of our community. The two juvenile organizations are growing with surprising rapidity both in members and supporters.

Already the roster of the younger club carries the names of twenty-five happy lads and another five have been placed on the waiting list. The beach supper, held on May 3, was a complete success and is a credit to the organizers, as well as the boys who provided the supper and worked out a successful program of entertainment in honor of the young men of the senior organization.

Miss Josephine M. Culbertson and Miss Ida A. Johnson who have been the prime factors in forming both groups tell of the party in the following detail:

"The boys with their bright colored sweaters caps, clambered over the banks like so many goats. They played pirates, and Indians, as well as nothing in particular, which might be termed 'Letting off Steam.' A big bonfire, and 'weenies' toasted on a stick, was a popular unit of the supper. Seven o'clock came all too soon, but they retired in good order, after a very happy time."

"The younger boys are still at their acrostics, formed of the letters Carmel Boys' Club, showing what they think the club stands for and how they mean to try to live up to these ideals. The card, containing these, will be placed in the Pine Cone window shortly, and we hope every one will study it and encourage the boys, who are making their standards of living."

"On Wednesday, the first consignment of athletic goods arrived, and as they were the very best to be had, the pleasure in getting the baseballs ready for work was a labor of love; much more congenial than reducing a wood pile. Of course, they had to be tried out, at the risk of dire misfortune to the brace and the garden, but all came out safely. After being satisfied that the baseballs were A No. 1 the orchestra then performed with great vigor, the boys without visible instruments using their vocal organs to good purpose. After all these diversions came a half hour's reading; this time for entertainment not improvement, followed by a bountiful supply of refreshments, provided by the kind friends who are so interested that they sometimes bid fair to run the digestion of both clubs, but boys have large empty spaces. It is better for us to know when supplies are coming to the larder and not have an experience repeated. When we had three cakes, lots of sandwiches, seven pies. We headed off two cakes, but the rest was all consumed—and no one was worse."

"We are often asked if we have any trouble, and are happy to say 'None.' We do not know of a boy who would give us trouble."

The Carmel Audubon Society will hold its annual picnic next Wednesday, at or near the Carmel gate to the Del Monte Property Co.'s grounds. Lunch at 12:30. Bring lunch, pencil and pad, opera or field glasses. All interested in birds are invited.

Chilly Cellar Claims Carmel

There's a movement on foot in Carmel to replace the ancient rustic water trough on Ocean avenue with a bronze statue of Marshall Wermuth, who almost made it possible for the Carmel Fire Department Baseball Club to win their maiden game. Marshall cleaned a full set of bases in last Sunday's contest with Pacific Grove and placed the local team comfortably ahead, but they finished the game on the short end of a 5 to 4 score.

We are pleased to say, however, that the Carmel Firemen played a greatly improved game and are sure to be in the fight soon. The regular league games will be cancelled next Sunday, but the fire boys will tackle a selected nine on Wilson Point.

Here's the standing of the clubs:

Club	W	L	Pct.
Columbus A. C.	4	1	.800
Stickers	4	1	.800
Minick's	3	2	.600
Newsies	3	2	.600
Troop 1	3	2	.600
Coast Valleys	2	3	.400
Pacific Grove	1	4	.200
Carmel	0	5	.000

Many Mussels Missing

Quick, Watson! the Mussels. Famous "finger printers" and sleuths from every nook and corner of California closed their convention doors at Salinas last Friday to answer a riot call from Point Carmel, when word was flashed to Sheriff "Billy" Nesbitt that a big gang of mussels were stewed on our scenic peninsula. The noise of the combat, in which the officers fought tooth and nail, could be heard for miles around, but the husky bivalves were finally surrounded and removed to Salinas by autos.

Allen-Glassell

Miss Frances Allen and Hobart Glassell were married Monday afternoon in the Salinas City Hall by Judge David Wallace. The ceremony was witnessed by George W. McLean of Oakland. Mr. and Mrs. Glassell left immediately for a honeymoon in southern California.

CARMEL CAL.

Jacinto Benavente, the "last of the Madrilenos," as John Dos Passos calls him, is unquestionably the leading figure in the school of playwrights that has been much in vogue since the passing of the "drame passionale" of Echegaray.

Benavente, present director of the Teatro Nacional, has recaptured some of Lope De Vega's marvelous quality of adventurous progression.

"Gente Conocida," a comedy, dissecting the manner of life of "people of consequence," is one of his most popular plays.

The popularity of all his writing is his willingness to play the game of wit, even of abuse, without too much rancor, and of Benevent's satiric comedies it may be said as in the old Proverb, "The wind of Madrid is so subtle that it will kill a man without putting out a candle."

"El viento de Madrid es tan sutil que mata a un hombre y no apaga un candil."

Professor Samuel J. Hume, director of the University of California Greek Theatre, announces a play-writing contest for a full length play, submitted by any bona-fide resident of California. A prize of three hundred dollars is for the winner.

Plays submitted must be entirely the original work of the author. No limitations have been placed on the subject or scope of the play nor the manner of its treatment—except that it shall be of sufficient length to provide an evening's entertainment.

It is suggested that no undue demands be made of setting or stage effects.

The Bureau of Educational Dramatics of New York has arranged a list of full evening plays suitable for High School use.

A number of the plays listed as Broadway successes are included. The names and addresses of the publishers; a brief characterization of each play with a note of the actor or actress who has helped make it famous.

A dozen or more plays designated as "Old Favorites Worth Reviving" and a series of special "Costume Plays" such as "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Beau Brummel," "The Chinese Lantern," "Fanchon the Cricket," and others, are also included in this list.

The ninth offering of the Mountain Play Association will be presented in the natural amphitheatre on the slopes of Mt. Tamalpais, on Sunday, the 22nd of this month.

Each year thousands walk up Mt. Tamalpais to see this unique presentation in its unique setting.

"Tamelpa," a legendary play of Indian character, will be shown for the first time this year, the author being Dan W. Tothoro.

"The Wandering Jew" is to be produced in New York this autumn by David Belasco, with Tyrone Power as "Matathias."

This actor is notable for a long list of character studies which he has created. Among these may be mentioned Brutus in "Julius Caesar," Daniel in "Thais," the Drunkenman in "The Servant in the House," the Marquis of Steyne in "Mrs. Fiske's Becky Sharpe" and Charles Brandon in "Julia Marlowe's Mary Tudor" in "When Knighthood was in Flower." Power has scored with equal success on the screen.

"The Wandering Jew" is now in its seventh month in England, where it is one of the most widely discussed dramas of the London season.

"The Dragon," a play written by Lady Gregory, is a genuine literary achievement; it is a mixture of ancient and modern Ireland and Lady Gregory has written it with the genuine hilarious spirit of the Celt. The dialogue is delicious—written in that curious Irish vein that is indescribable. The Harvard Dramatic Club recently produced "The Dragon," and the 47 Workshop also designed the costumes and sets for the production.

James K. Hackett, the American actor, with an English company, will present "Macbeth" in English at the government subsidized theatre, The Odeon, in Paris. Plans for the expansion of the Franco-American production into two performances have been approved by the government, and "Macbeth" will be presented on the sixth of June. Firmin Gémier, a Paris actor-manager and president of the French Shakespearean Society, will, in this performance, play "MacDuff," speaking in the French language.

William S. Rainey will appear in an elaborate production of "Julius Caesar" at the Players Theatre in San Francisco, in the role of Mary Antony. Recently Mr. Rainey has been with the Provincetown players in New York.

MUSIC MATTERS

The question which often arises as to whether men are more musical than women is answered by Henriette Weber in a book called "Putting Young America in Tune."

Women show their real interest in music by attending concerts and recitals given by great artists. As singers, women are equally renowned as men; in fact, there have been more great women singers than men. As pianists and violinists no women have yet reached the heights of Liszt, Rubenstein, Paderewski, Ysaye or Kreisler, and when we think of composers the men here are certainly lords of creation—in vain we look for a female. Bach, Beethoven, Wagner, Schubert, Chopin, Grieg, Verdi and so many other—but if it were not for the women there would not be so much opportunity for the men to be heard, for as we know, it is the women who make it possible to give recitals and concerts.

Modern industrialism is doing much to make men appreciate music more, this modern development of music in industry having begun with simple group singing.

The Musical Quarterly contains some interesting and instructive hitherto unpublished letters from Verdi with a sketch of the agreement for "Aida" in Verdi's handwriting, in part, as follows:

"1.—Maestro Verdi will compose an Italian opera in musica entitled 'Aida,' to be represented at the Italian Theatre in Cairo in the course of the month of January, 1871, the verse to be made by an Italian poet selected by the aforesaid maestro.

"2.—Maestro Verdi will retain all rights in the aforesaid score and libretto for all other parts of the world. In due time there shall be sent to Egypt a copy of the score from which the vocal and orchestral parts shall be copied.

"3.—Maestro Verdi may, while the opera is being played in Cairo, have it played, at the same time, in some other large theatre in Europe, and he will indicate the artists who are to assume the characters."

Miss Laura Lewis, the contralto singer, who was recently in Carmel, is now in San Francisco preparing for a concert tour of the Eastern States. Miss Lewis is planning a visit to Carmel before she goes to New York and Carmelenos may have the pleasure of hearing her sing again.

In her concert repertoire Miss Lewis will include several songs by Henry Cowell, one of the most promising of the young composers. His "My Summer," which he transposed to suit her low contralto, and a lovely setting of Shelley's "Music When Sweet Voices Die," which Mr. Cowell composed for Miss Lewis.

Mme. Jeanne Jomelli, whose recently opened studio of singing at the Richelieu Hotel in San Francisco is just now devoting herself to the training of her pupils in operatic roles.

Mme. Jomelli arrived in New York from Paris in 1906 and was one of the leading prima donnas in the Metropolitan Grand Opera, with Alfred Hertz as conductor. She includes in her repertoire forty or fifty grand operas.

Estelle Heartt Dreyfus, contralto, gave her annual song recital in Los Angeles this past week assisted by Ariadna Roumanova, composer-pianist, and Grace Andrews, accompanist.

The program was divided into two parts, the first consisting of request songs and Spanish numbers, the second of Russian songs. The request songs were selected from among the favorites that the friends of Mrs. Dreyfus love to hear her sing, and the Spanish numbers are the result of a recent trip which the singer took through Castile. Regarding these songs, Mrs. Dreyfus says: "When I sing the Spanish songs, I hope to bring to my hearers, either some call of the night, or the song of the burro driver, or a snatch of melody heard from the families of olive pickers as they work together under the trees. Nowhere more than in Spain does one hear such natural singing; sometimes sad, more often glad, but all sung because it cannot seem to stay within."

Vasia Anikeef, one of the most promising singers of today, is a Russian, born in Kalooga near Moscow, the homeland of many of its most inspired composers and musicians, among them Rubenstein, Tchaikowsky, Rachmaninoff, Mische Elman and Jascha Heifetz.

Mr. Anikeef's voice is a bass, rich, resonant, powerful, yet capable of infinite tenderness. He sings songs of the Russian people; vivid songs, portraying the bitterness of poignant grief, a flight of ecstasy, or the fragile loveliness of the cradle song, all with sincerity and irresistible spontaneity. At present this artist is appearing in concert with his teacher and accompanist, Thomas Vincent Cator.

Herman Heller's orchestra in the California theatre presented Alexander Saslavski, the Russian violinist, as soloist, recently, playing the D minor concerto of Vieuxtemps.

This noted violinist, who has been making his home in California for the past two years, was concert master of the New York Symphony, and also one of the organizers of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, serving as concert master for four years.

Recently he has been concert master of the Los Angeles Symphony orchestra.

The Peruvian contralto, Marguerite D'Alvarez, who sang at the Manhattan Opera House several years ago, has returned to America, one of the few great vocal interpreters. Her beauty of face and figure, the lustrous shadow of her hair, her torrential voice, which can peel like a bell, combine to make this daughter of old Spain a singer who can give you the unique thrill of great interpretation.

The quiescence of this singer's art is perhaps in her singing of Spanish songs. The heat, the passion, the languor, the melancholy, the ferocity, irony or sombre humor that she pours into the songs of Spain, thru the gorgeous medium of her voice, are a revelation and an enchantment.

The Ignatz J. Paderewski Fund for American Composers, offers, through William P. Blake, trustee, prizes of $1000 for a symphony and $500 for a piece of chamber music, either for strings alone or for pianoforte or other solo instrument or instruments with strings.

The contest is open only to American composers and the judges who have agreed to serve are Charles Martin Loeffler, Wallace Goodrich and Frederic Stock. Manuscripts must be sent between September 15th and 30th to Elizabeth C. Allen, secretary for the Paderewski Fund, at the New England Conservatory of music, Gainsborough Street and Huntington Avenue, Boston, and should be submitted under an assumed name, with the composer's name and address inclosed in a sealed envelope.

National Defense Training

Plans are now being formulated by the War Department which contemplate a month of training for 10,800 citizens between the ages of 16 and 35 years without expense to them. These citizens will be drawn from all parts of the country. Quotas in proportion are being allotted to each State and to each community within that State. This will assure a representative body of citizens being assembled at these camps for training. The War Department is most anxious that the men who take this training be thoroughly representative not only of all parts of the country but of all classes. For this reason the qualifications demand simple average intelligence and physical ability to take the course prescribed. Congressman Arthur Free will be glad to furnish application blanks and any further information concerning the camps to the young men of this district who are interested.

More Room

Carmel's new library site, diagonally across from the old location on Dolores avenue, is now occupied by the old library building, which will be enlarged by an addition of twenty feet in a westerly direction. The addition will provide space for a reading room, the absence of which was keenly felt by members and visitors. The space adjoining, to the west, will be beautified by a seat placed around the large pine, a path will be made from the street to the building and the grounds cleared without destroying the beauty of the location. The public-spirited citizens who have planned and are executing the work are real benefactors.

ART NOTES

Ralph Davison Miller has come to Carmel to grace the artists' colony. Mr. Miller is an artist by foreordination and personal experiment more than by instruction. His only loss from this lack was a mere knowledge of process, being longer in achieving results than would otherwise have been the case.

Introducing a brilliant mentality and a vivid imagination into his art, Ralph Davison Miller is working out a formula of his own, blend of the old academic and the more moderate of the impressionistic methods, which reaches for the soul and inner meaning—the symbolism—of landscapes rather than their superficial forms alone. His work is modern and dramatic—very bold, alive with bright colors, and strong contrasts, a depth of thought and a depth of emotion transferred to canvas. The sinister moods of tempests and distorted trees and the fairy element underlying all natural beauty find subtle expression for themselves.

Mr. Miller's favorite subjects are the northern poplars, English oaks and Carmel cypresses. At a recent exhibition one of his most admired paintings was "Sunset on the Cypress." The rugged, stanch personality of the trees which have clung to the rocky coast through years of storm—the trunks bent like the burdened bodies of pagan worshippers, show a warm reddish yellow, the upper branches a rich green, high-lighted with the peculiar yellow which comes from the greenish-yellow sky.

That we know surprisingly little about our Dutch contemporaries, needs no argument. William Phillips, our Minister to the Netherlands, says that American art is as little known in Holland. He has interested himself in the Holland-America Society's purpose to supply our defects in acquaintance and suggests that the exhibition recently brought to New York should be balanced by our sending one to The Hague. The collection shown at the Anderson Galleries displays the character of two dozen painters and six sculptors and craftsmen.

Percy Gray has recently exhibited the best lot of water colors he has ever done. His work both in coloring and composition as well as poetic treatment of his subject is attracting sincere admiration. Percy Gray has been painting in water colors for many years and has attained a degree of perfection of his favorite medium which even the old masters did not reach. His title of the "California Corot" is well merited.

The exhibition of the work of California artists at the Palace of Fine Arts opened on Tuesday afternoon. Several of the best California artists have sent excellent examples of their work.

The Ehrich galleries in New York devoted much space this season to early Spanish paintings. Three interesting paintings of saints of the Catalan school were shown. Two panel figures by El Greco, a St. John and a Holy Virgin, conjectured to belong with a central crucifixion, had been shown in New York before. They are characteristic of the painter's elongated figure and emotionally swept in forms. Two canvasses, "Christ Mocked," a scene of crowded excitement, and a large "Repentant St. Peter." The still life by Velasquez was studied with great interest and the portraits by Goya, Ribalta Ribera, Pereda and Zurbaran appear in religious themes. Mazo is shown in sprightly glimpses of fiestas.

At the Montross Galleries in New York recently much interest was shown in the work of F. Overton Colbert, a Chickasaw Indian. His paintings, a series of gaily designey interpretations in tempera colors, of the legends of Chickasaw and Hopi mythology are most interesting.

Mr. Colbert has travelled and painted among the Indian tribes in Alaska and Mexico and the reservation lying between.

At the Babcock Galleries in New York, Wells M. Sawyer and his daughter, Helen Alton Sawyer, are exhibiting their landscapes. The younger artist carries a family tradition through a modification of later training which asserts itself in a greater stir among color areas. Mr. Sawyer's "Westchester" and his "Gloucester Streets" are quieter in color and more quiescent in pattern.

R. Clarkson Colman, a recent exhibitor in the galleries of the south, has a studio at Laguna Beach, where he studies the ocean in all its moods, loving best that time of day when the sun is ready to depart from the scene of its long journey through the upper blue, after first gilding the lower blue until the original color is almost lost in the glint and gleam of its enamel. Such pictures are "Lantern in the Sky," "Traceries on the Ledge," and "Surge." Attractive night scenes are his "Moonlight Serenade" and "Moonlight off Cypress Point."

James Swinnerton has been to the Arizona desert and has brought back with him some startling canvases in oils which he calls advertisements of the Western desert—a tremendous subject with its light, heat and awesome intensity. Mr. Swinnerton is famous as a cartoonist and his serious ideals are not widely known—his apparent sincerity is to be commended.

Another cartoonist with a flair for serious work is Rudolph Dirks. During his winter in Carmel this year Mr. Dirks did a great deal of excellent painting of landscapes and marines.

TO ACQUIRE THE DUNES

It begins to look as if the city of Carmel may acquire the sand dunes before many weeks. The movement toward that end is marking time pending a conference between the committee appointed for the purpose and the owners of the property. Meantime the project is gaining favor in all quarters.

The dunes at the foot of Ocean avenue covers about twenty-eight acres; the tract reaches from Eighth avenue to the former Powers property. As yet it has not been subdivided into lots; but, should it go into the hands of strangers, only a short time would elapse before buildings would occupy what is now one of California's beauty spots.

A number of those interested in the preservation of these dunes are awaiting the moment when a price can be set. Then the matter will at once be brought before the entire community for discussion, with a view toward speedy action. The idea behind the movement is not only conservation of beauty but the preservation of our beach and the bath-house property from such desecration as has ruined many another California resort for people of good taste.

LOGICAL EDUCATION

A college to develop young men and women who will be able immediately after graduation to take charge of all kinds of industrial plants and business houses as proprietors and executives, is being developed at Yellow Springs, Ohio, under the direction of a Quaker, Arthur Ernest Morgan, a civil and hydraulic engineer of wide reputation, who is trying to revolutionize American education.

The student's school time will be allotted as follows: 45 per cent to cultural subjects, 30 per cent to general vocational courses, 15 per cent to special vocational courses and 10 per cent to physical education.

The college will not only save students from all expenses for tuition, board, fees of every kind and charges for books, but it will itself be supported and expanded by the students' own efforts. There will be around it a fringe of plants, factories, business and financial houses, conducted by students under specially trained leaders.

The course will be six years. Frank A. Vanderlip, prominent banker, is a trustee, as is also Jerome P. Greene of John D. Rockefeller's philanthropy committee.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

"The World's Illusion"—by Jacob Wasserman. This book is a translation of "Christian Wahnschaffe." It is not a meticulous narrative of the cradle to the grave species, which involve the later English novelists in trilogies and interrelated volumes, although it offers itself uncompromisingly in two bulky volumes.

The first part of "The World's Illusion" has something of the spasmodic movement of the cinematograph. Characters appear for a moment and disappear with disconcerting rapidity; people are transported in a few lines of text to the North of Scotland, to Monte Carlo, to Hamburg, to Liverpool, to Buenos Aires. They are shooting game in Austria and Africa, taking the waters at Marienbad, bunting down curios in Antwerp—all the restless luxury of the European upper class is evoked in these pages.

It tells of Christian Wahnschaffe, enjoying to the full the power and leisure and freedom so uniquely the possession of the wealthiest European aristocracy, gradually dispossesses himself of these things, and plunges deep into the lower depths of proletarian life, to seek among prostitutes and murderers the answer to the riddle of existence.

The main characters are well defined personalities; Christian and his greatest friend and antithesis, Crammon, the delightfully worldly-wise; Eva Sorrel, the dancer, who seeks to grasp the world's illusion.

This beautiful dancer personifies the attempt to find in aesthetic pleasure the answer to life, and it seems as if her wealth and success, consciously fought for and achieved, were the solution of the enigma which baffles Christian. While Eva moves on triumphantly, Christian pursues his queer fate, living in utter poverty, burdened with the care of a wretched creature of the streets whom he has picked up literally out of the gutter, with some mystic hope of understanding himself in her.

This girl, Ruth, is murdered by Niels Heinrich, and it is here that Christian fully realizes the truth which has heretofore evaded him.

This incident, from its inception to its close, is a powerful piece of writing. The manner in which Niels is drawn to confess the deed recalls the consummate mastery of Dostoevsky in his portrayal of Raskolnikov. The subtle interaction of these two men, the fierce revolt of the criminal, the supreme horror of the confession, and the cataclysmic effect upon the soul of Wahnschaffe of this glimpse into unsuspected depths, mark the superb culmination of this masterpiece.

The third series of LeConte Memorial Lectures will be given in the Yosemite National Park during the coming summer months. T. F. Sanford, Associate Professor of English in the University of California, will deliver three of the lectures, taking as his subject, "California and its Makers of Literature." Professor Sanford has made an extensive study of the literary men and women of the State, and in presenting his subject will group these writers as the Argonauts, the Bohemians and the Romancers.

"The Shield of Silence," by Harriet Comstock, is a charming story of mistaken energy, heart burning, and even misery before a perfectly rational solution is evolved.

The story concerns an experiment in environment.

Joan and Nancy are raised by the aunt of one of them and even she does not know which child is her niece. Nancy, the abandoned daughter of a flighty family of the Virginia mountains, develops into a dainty, home-loving personage, while Joan, of bluest blood, becomes a harum-scarum person, bubbling over with the love of adventure, causing herself no end of trouble. They are real girls delightfully contrasted and lovable. It seems impossible that Joan and Nancy could be creatures of fiction. The story is in Mrs. Comstock's best vein.

"Blind Mice," by C. Kay Scott, appears to be a narrative of a contest of souls and tears between two women.

Lucy Winter, a Chicago architect's young wife and heroine of the story, scores first by the scrupulous method of resorting to tears before her opponent enters the story at all. Her opponent is her own mother, Mrs. Nannie Merwent, a rouged and simpering divorcee, a perfect type of parasite with a genius for blighting lives.

John Winter, Lucy's husband, takes Nannie's side against Lucy in all disagreements—almost forcing Lucy into the arms of her husband's friend and business partner—but tears conquer in this case.

The infinitely patient and persistent accumulation of small talk and small actions becomes in the end actually fascinating.

Anna Katherine Green, whose widely known mystery stories are conceded to be among the best of their kind, is now in her seventy-fifth year.

Her first successful book, "The Leavenworth Case," has been followed by a total of thirty novels and four hundred short stories—all dealing with mysterious crimes.

Many New Appeals For Old Clothes

Trees are pruned to give them fresh, strong growth. Let the dead branches stay on from year to year and before long the tree will be a shabby specimen.

Think of your clothes tree in this way. Carry along from year to year a lot of clothes that you never wear, and how do you feel about them? You feel that you have nothing fresh or new in your wardrobe. You go rummaging about for something that you have not worn in a long time, hoping that when you have it on you will feel well dressed once more. But you don't. You are sick of the sight of the perfectly good clothes hanging from their respective pegs.

The appeal for old clothing is coming from all sides. The destitute people of the Near East need clothes, the Red Cross need clothes, the Monterey schools need shoes, the Carmel Missionary Society need clothes, the Salvation Army need clothes. These calls are not for money, but for the clothing which is past your wearing.

Wednesday, May 25, has been christened "Bundle Day" for the gathering of clothing for the Near East relief. Members of the Boys' Clubs will distribute tags today so that everyone will have ample time to "Bundle Up Their Bundle" and send or take it to the Methodist Church on "Bundle Day."

The following articles can be used: coats and sweaters, dresses, blankets, wool shirts, heavy hose, wool gloves and mittens, boots and shoes (must be tied in pairs), shop worn garments, sheets for bandages, new cloth or garments and any heavy clothing in which there is still some wear. Do not send laces, silks, veils, chiffons, evening clothes, satin slippers, high-heeled shoes, straw hats or silk stockings. All bundles will be assembled and the "Bundle Ship," Esther Dollar, will sail from San Francisco on June 5 with its relief cargo.

Another call comes from a Monterey school teacher who informs the Pine Cone that there are many children who cannot attend school for lack of covering for their feet. Offerings to this source will be received by the truant officer of Monterey.

The local Red Cross has also issued a plea for clothing to be delivered to their headquarters in the office of the Carmel Development Company.

The following communication has been received by the Pine Cone:

"Desirous of cultivating the spirit of Christian co-operation in a fundamental economic situation the Carmel Missionary Society are planning a rummage sale. And through our valuable city paper are seeking contribution from all who desire to foster this spirit."

"Cast-off clothing, household effects, books, etc. will be gratefully received. Mrs. J. W. Hand is very kindly co-operating with the society to the extent of receiving at their office on Ocean avenue contributions. For further information please consult Mrs. H. C. Kip, Mrs. Carrie Main or Miss M. E. White."

Captain Woodside, of the Salvation Army, asks that cast-off clothing for use in his organization be left with Mrs. Elva Hoehn, San Carlos, near Ocean avenue.
